

b1
said first communications terminal having a central controller transmitting status data relating to functional features of said first communications terminal to a remote computer via a second network, whereby the remote computer is programmed to automatically generate an instruction sequence from the status data and to transmit the instruction sequence to said first communications terminal via the second network; and said controller providing the functional features to said first communications terminal by processing the instruction sequence as a program section.
